Company Overview:

In operation since 2002, Sayfa Group employs more than 120 employees in providing workplace fall-protection solutions for businesses.

Challenge:

Workplace safety provider Sayfa Group had a lot to be excited about: the company was growing quickly and its fall-protections solutions were expanding into new markets. As a provider of workplace safety solutions, it was important for the company to maintain a strong reputation for internal employee health and safety.

But the organization was fast outgrowing its traditional paper-based EHS system. Executives and employees needed something they could more easily access and update from the field. To improve efficiencies and meet increasingly complex workplace safety reporting requirements, the company sought to transition to a cloud-based reporting system, where all of its workplace safety data could be easily stored, maintained and reported in one centralized system.

Sayfa Group partnered with HSI to manage their EHS requirements. Sayfa's leadership says the move has and continues to produce lasting returns for its growing business.

Solution:

Sayfa's leadership team had a solid handle on how they wanted to manage internal workplace safety requirements. In working with HSI, executives sought a partner that could tailor a system to meet their specific needs.

A major focus in the transition from outdated paper-based safety records to the cloud was the integration of a centralized data management solution for more efficient safety reporting.

Another focus was the need for employees to conduct safety reporting on their smartphones, directly from the field.

Sayfa's team says it was impressed by HSI's broad range of available features, including its ability to convert countless paper-based safety forms and spreadsheets into one centralized platform.

"Our partnership with HSI helps our managers easily keep on top of safety using their mobile devices and it's so easy to use we have seen a three-fold increase in reported events."

Results:

In addition to driving efficiencies across the business and reducing the amount of time it takes to comply with safety requirements, Sayfa says the technology has been widely embraced by its employees, increasing workplace safety reporting by more than 300%.

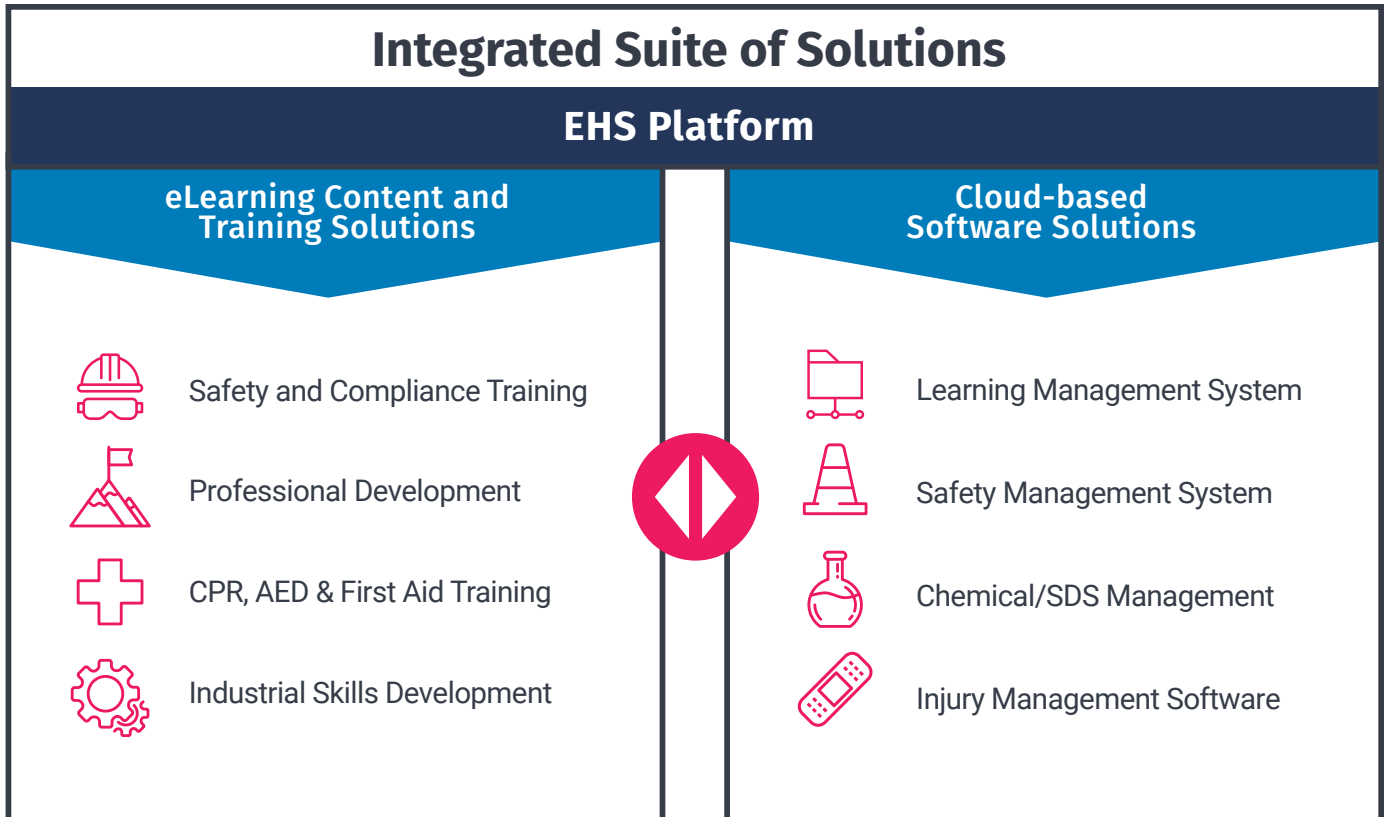

"Our partnership with HSI helps our managers easily keep on top of safety using their mobile devices," said the company's head of operations, adding, "It's so easy to use we have seen a three-fold increase in reported events."
